Raising a Child with Dyslexia:
What Every Parent Needs to Know
by Don M. Winn

AWARD-WINNING CHILDREN’S AUTHOR EXPLORES THE BEST WAYS TO CARE FOR YOUR CHILD WITH DYSLEXIA

Do you suspect your child may have dyslexia? How can you give any child—dyslexic or not—the best possible foundation for learning to read? One in five children in the United States has a learning difficulty such as dyslexia or ADHD. These challenges can make children feel inadequate, misunderstood, and frustrated both in and out of the classroom. However, teaching children to cope effectively with these challenges will create inner strength and benefits that will empower dyslexic children for their entire lives.

In his new parenting book, Raising a Child with Dyslexia: What Every Parent Needs to Know [Cardboard Box Adventures Publishing, September 2019], award-winning children’s author Don Winn explores how learning difficulties affect kids in a number of ways and illustrates how those who care for them can better understand their challenges and cultivate learning and emotional growth. Winn writes from his personal experience as a lifelong dyslexic reader and writer.

Raising a Child with Dyslexia is a user-friendly guide which provides detailed assistance to parents and educators who want to help children with dyslexia achieve their best life. This compassionate and helpful handbook will help parents watch for signs of dyslexia in their growing child at every age. More than that, Winn provides advice about when to go to a professional, how the testing process works, and how to support your child both at home and in the classroom.

“Dyslexia. It is a word that, like autism and cancer, strikes fear into the hearts of parents, teachers, principals, and those impacted by it. Don Winn has written a comprehensive yet nurturing, caring, and compassionate book about this condition,” says Michael F. Shaughnessy, PhD, professor of special education at Eastern New Mexico University. “There are so many issues—social, behavioral, cognitive, reading, and coping, but Don addresses all of these in a kind, caring fashion. Parents, special ed, and regular ed teachers need all the information they can get to work with and nurture a child with dyslexia. Don does a great job of covering the waterfront of issues that are relevant to dyslexia. An important and much-needed text.”

Raising a Child with Dyslexia explores:

- How parents can help their child at home
- How grandparents can take part in helping their grandchildren at home
- Tips on working with your child’s school to create an optimal learning environment
- Symptoms that warrant the diagnosis of a professional
- How to offer a safe space for children with dyslexia to learn and grow
- Specific techniques in helping a child deal with the difficult emotional fallout of dyslexia, and much more!

In addition to his first parenting book, Winn has written picture books exploring the dyslexic experience, as well as many other fun and educational topics for children. His last book, There’s a Monkey in my Backpack!, explores the experiences of a young girl with dyslexia—how she comes to terms with and accepts her dyslexia, as well as her feelings about herself. The book includes questions for discussion that parents can use to help their child sort out how they feel about dyslexia and themselves.

Don M. Winn is a multiple award-winning children’s author of thirteen picture books and the Sir Kaye the Boy Knight® series of novels for independent readers. As a dyslexia advocate and a dyslexic himself, he frequently addresses parents and educators on how to maximize the value of shared reading time and how to help dyslexic and other struggling readers to learn to love reading. Winn lives and writes in Round Rock, Texas.

Winn will be the keynote speaker at the Central Texas Dyslexia Conference this coming October.
